During these three days (November 20th, 21st and 22nd), the MedaWeek Barcelona will host numerous key thematic and sectorial fora. In past editions, this important event counted with more than 35 thematics fora, 600 working sessions, 1,800 prominent speakers, welcomed over 20,000 attendees from all over the world and obtained coverage from more than 80 media outlets. These included entrepreneurs and representatives of the private sector, business support organisations such as Chambers of Commerce and promotion agencies, political authorities, and international coverage from a number of local and foreign media agencies. Altogether, the MedaWeek Barcelona saw the participation of over 45 countries across the globe and this year’s edition will be no exception.
The 13th edition of the MedaWeek Barcelona, as in its previous editions, will bring many trending topics to the table and serve as the flagship Mediterranean entrepreneurial-economic platform for the entire world. This year’s edition aims to cover three main objectives as a central axis:

1. Underline the importance of the African continent’s role for the Mediterranean.
2. Propose alternative systems to the Western banking system for the countries of the “MEDA” region.
3. Align the sustainable development needs of the Mediterranean area with the United Nations’ SDGs.
Medaweek Barcelona 2019 will start with the Forum on Business Development in Africa, which will advance the trilateral Europe-Africa-Asia Cooperation Agenda for the coming years in a context of political transition, listing the latest regional transformations, the key involvement of regional economic actors and the new horizons for the African business world.

The Forums of this edition will focus in particular on the harmful impact of plastics in our region and especially in our sea, the urgent need to achieve a circular economic system in order to develop sustainable practices in the major Mediterranean cities and in the textile industry, as well as the support of renewable energies.

Ethical business practices and gender equality will also have a central place in MedaWeek Barcelona to ensure the transition of the Mediterranean area to a leadership role at the head of 3 continents.

Like its previous edition, this 16th New Africa Business Development Forum will be organised jointly with the European Institute of the Mediterranean (IEMed) and the Federation of African Chambers.

This edition will focus on new challenges related to the dynamism of African economies in the agribusiness, renewable energy, logistics, tourism and applied technology sectors. Successful business models and innovative development solutions will be exposed and developed to provide access to the best practices for African businesses. Furthermore, the NABDF will highlight the key role of the Maghreb as an influential actor and as a crossroad between Africa, the Mediterranean and Europe.
The 5th edition of the Mediterranean Textile Forum (MediTex) will be revisited under a new perspective and will highlight the common desire of a Mediterranean textile industry that is ethical and environment-friendly. This sector is particularly concerned with water and soil pollution because of the many chemical products used and the production polluting waste. This pollution is found in the Mediterranean and strongly affects key sectors of the region, such as tourism or agri-food.

This Forum will present the “Fourth Textile Industrial Revolution”, which proposes many innovative solutions resulting from new technologies in order to make the Mediterranean Textile a high-tech sector. These solutions will include a reduction of pollutants and an improvement in the rights and working conditions of textile workers. The speech will also be given to young Mediterranean talents who will present their projects and their vision of a sustainable textile “Made in the Mediterranean”.

ECOMEDA SUSTAINABILITY SUMMIT
Take Action: Focusing on Sustainability

MedaWeek Barcelona and ASCAME are committed to promoting the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals in order to meet the challenges of the current and future world, particularly in terms of environment and prosperity in the Mediterranean region. It is to remind us of our compromise that one of the main themes for this edition will be Sustainable Development. Renewable energies and green energies will, therefore, be at the centre of this forum, which will be divided into:

9th Meda Cities Forum – Urban regeneration and circular economy in Mediterranean Cities

4th Meda Solar & Wind Energy Forum – The unexplored solar and wind potential of the Mediterranean region

#MedaWeek19
In its 5th edition, the Mediterranean Islamic Finance Forum is an opportunity to get to know this financial system and thus explore new business opportunities in the Mediterranean region and beyond. This forum will introduce you to a wide banking network that respects the principles of Islamic law, with practices such as the concept of solidarity guarantee (Takaful) or the interest-free certificate (Sukuk). Islamic finance is a way of bringing together different Mediterranean actors, allowing them to benefit from untapped financial resources within Muslim countries. It is also a way to access the business community of the Gulf countries.

In addition, Islamic finance is an opportunity to align with some of the United Nations’ Sustainable Development Goals, as it incorporates the principles of financial sustainability and responsible finance, which are rarely found in Western finance.
This year, the Mediterranean Women Entrepreneurs Forum will be an opportunity to bring together many influential businesswomen from the Mediterranean region and overseas to discuss topics that are essential for the development of female entrepreneurship in the Mediterranean.

The theme of new technologies and innovation for women will be particularly addressed through the support and enhancement of the careers of young professional women. Their important role in stimulating Mediterranean economies will be developed, as will the need to fight gender inequalities, which stands as the 5th objective in the Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations.
Social Economy is today a full-fledged economy and needs the attention of the entrepreneurial world. In the Mediterranean alone, this sector brings together nearly one million organisations and employs more than 8 million people. For its second edition, the Mediterranean Social Economy Forum will present the latest news in the sector, recalling the need for a transformation of the current economic system. It will also highlight the needs of actors to ensure their peaceful and sustainable development, including risk assessment, the establishment of mutual funds, promotion of expertise through the support of institutions, etc.

At this forum, companies that have implemented Social Economy will present their key success factors and best practices.
